

Work Related Learning

Midwife

We had a visit from a midwife for Work Related Learning. She taught us that it is important to support a baby's head because the muscles in their neck aren't very strong. We washed babies making sure we were gentle and didn't get soap in their eyes. We wrapped the babies in towels to keep them warm before we dried them. We fed the babies a bottle and patted their backs to burp them, because they swallow air when they are feeding which can sometimes make them sick.

